PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Vetoing the Civil Rights Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 27.

TO THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES:

I regret that my bill which has passed both Houses of Congress, entitled "An act to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights, and furnish the means of their vindication," contains provisions which conflict with the views of duty which I have heretofore expressed to you, and with my sense of duty to the whole people, and which compel me to withhold from the bill my official approval. I am, therefore, constrained to return it to the Senate, the House of Representatives having first had the action upon it, with my objections in its possessing a law. By the first section of the bill, all persons born in the United States, and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed, are declared to be citizens of the United States. This would seem to make persons of African descent citizens of the United States, and the Chinese of the Pacific States, natives of the United States, and to entitle them to all the rights and privileges enjoyed by the white citizen, and to subject them to the same punishments, pains and penalties to which the white citizen is subject, and to none other. Thus, a person of African descent may, in any State of this Union, commit murder, arson, burglary, rape, or other heinous crime, and the only punishment to which he can be subjected is that which may be inflicted upon a white citizen for the same crime. He can be punished in no other way, nor to any greater extent. He can testify in the courts of the United States in favor of or against a white man, in all cases civil and criminal, precisely as a white man can. He can buy, sell, inherit, hold and convey property, real and personal, to the same extent that a white man can. He can enter into all contracts, make and enforce notes, sue in the courts, and be sued, lease houses, collect his rents, and execute deeds and mortgages for property. He can, in short, do all acts and things, and be entitled to all rights, that a white man can do, or that can be done by any person in the United States. This is a very large operation of law, and is unquestionably the most extensive and important ever proposed in the United States since the adoption of the Constitution. It is a long step toward the assimilation of the African race with the European, and the Asiatic with both. It is a bold stride toward the practical question of intermarriage between persons of European and African descent, and between persons of European descent and Asiatics. It is a question of profound importance, whether the two races can live together in the same community on terms of equality. Recent events have proved that they cannot live together as friends, fellow-citizens, or brothers-in-law

CHICAGO DRY GOODS MARKET.

TUESDAY EVENING, March 27.

Our jobbers are still busy, and the general dry goods market is characterized by the same activity that has been seen at any time since the opening of the season. The offers to buy are numerous, and are generally freely on the basis of prices now ruling. The steadiness of the market for staple goods and the upward tone to gold give a confidence to the stock of Prints is still restricted, but the assortment is more complete than it was a week ago. Shortly we shall see Ginghams and Ticks, with a good deal of activity in the demand for them. Domestic Cottons are comparatively loose.

The question recurring on the amendment of Ald. Kean moved the previous question.
